

Nine Men's Morris

1. Take turns placing your 9 pieces on empty points on the board. There should be six empty places.
2. Take turns sliding your pieces to the empty places. You can only move a piece to an adjacent space.
3. As you move around the board, the object is to make a row of three of your pieces. Each row of three pieces is called a "mill".
4. Each time you make a mill, you get to capture one of the other player's pieces. You cannot take away a piece from one of your partner's mills until there are no other pieces left.
5. When placing a piece, you may "open" or break into one of your mills by moving one of your three pieces off the row. Later, you may "close" the mill by returning the piece to its original position. Every time you make a mill, you get to take away another of your partner's pieces. However, if your mill is "open", your partner may take away one of your pieces from the "open" mill.
6. You can win two ways: (a) the other player has only two pieces left. (b) the other player's pieces are blocked.

Welcome to the Current Middle Ages

The Society for Creative Anachronism is an international organization dedicated to researching and re-creating the arts and skills of pre-17th-century Europe. Our "Known World" consists of 20 kingdoms, with over 30,000 members residing in countries around the world. Members, dressed in clothing of the Middle Ages and Renaissance, attend events which feature tournaments, royal courts, feasts, dancing, various classes & workshops, and more.

The SCA offers a wide range of activities for individuals and families to participate. Many of our events are overnight camping events with the ability to participate in a unique communal setting with like minded individuals. There is something for everyone regardless of age or ability. Our activities include but are not limited to:

- |             |                  |
|-------------|------------------|
| Combat      | Cooking          |
| Archery     | Music            |
| Calligraphy | Performance      |
| Heraldry    | Youth Activities |
| Equestrian  | Metal Working    |
| Costuming   | Leathercraft     |
| Dancing     | Service          |

And Much More

Membership is not required to participate in our activities; however, membership does offer a number of benefits including the ability to hold office, participate in crown tournament and a discount on event fees.

Along with our local activities, numerous events are hosted by different groups throughout the kingdom. A calendar of these events can be found on our kingdom's website. We look forward to seeing you, and we welcome you to the Society for Creative Anachronism.
